

National Severe Weather Warning Service

Chief Forecasters Assessment

A large area of rain is expected to run across the UK through Monday and into Tuesday. A band of this is expected to become slow moving over parts of the highlighted area with heavy elements running through it. This has the potential to give 80 mm of rainfall in a few places during Monday.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Rain

Valid from 06:00 on Mon, 05th Jun 2017 until 06:00 on Tue, 06th Jun 2017

Heavy rain is expected across Wales and Northwest England on Monday, lasting into Tuesday morning.

This will be persistent in some places with the potential for localised flooding along with disruption to some transport routes and more difficult driving conditions.
